Current Comment

The World Court seems to be having its troubles these days, in added quantity, when it comes to the question of the ratification of the resolution for adherence by the United States. After the rejection of Reservation 5 by other nations who are members of the court it seemed that American membership had gone by the boards. Then the drawing up of the Root protocol, which was said to be an "agreeable" compromise, revived the agitation for American adherence to the court. But it soon became evident, after the resolution was referred back to the Senate, that the Root protocol was subject to various interpretations. Senators who strongly favored Reservtion 5, which gave Uncle Sam the right to veto advisory opinions on questions in which he claimed an interest, declared that the Root protocol destroyed this reservation, and added the argument that if this were not true, the nations who had rejected Reservation 5 would have rejected the Root protocol. Even many of the senators who favor American adherence to the World Court began to demand that the question of the Root protocol and Reservation 5 be cleared up.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania offered a resolution to the effect that it was the belief and understanding of the Senate that the intention of Reservation 5 was still in force and effect under the Root protocol. Then a dispute broke out as to whether this Reed resolution would have to be acknowledged by the other powers to be effective. Senator Reed said that it would not, but Senator Borah and others held that it would. Then Senator Pittman came forward with a reservation which would make it necessary for the President of the United States to ascertain from the other powers their views on the general question at issue with the understanding that American ratification would not be completed until answers were received satisfactory to the American government on the question of advisory opinions on questions in which the United States has or claims an interest.

This resolution of Senator Pittman's, it is predicted, will pass the Senate if and whenever the question of our adherence to the World Court comes up and it is believed by most observers that it throws the question back to where it was two or three years ago. But that is not all. A new question has arisen to plague the advocates of American adherence to the World Court. The women are getting busy. The first intimation came when Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, himself an opponent of American adherence to the League of Nations and the World Court, offered a reservation which would prohibit the World Court from administering any law based on the inequalities of sex, or which did not give the women of the world exactly the same standing as the men.

This action was followed by a cablegram from Mrs.

PEACH GROWERS IN VAST COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

Sacramento, April 12—California's vast cling peach industry was prepared today to resolve itself into a closely-knit corporate body following organization here of its co-operative groups under the name of the California Federated Peach Growers, and the adoption of a curtailment plan designed to meet the drastic economic conditions that now confront the industry.

Roy Pike, Vernalis, San Joaquin county grower, was named president of the Federated growers. Clinton Merritt, Tulare, was named vice-president and L. E. Neel, Turlock, secretary-treasurer. Provision was also made for a general manager, who will be named later.

Organization of the industry followed two months of deliberation by a state-wide growers' committee named by Director Dudley Moulton of the state department of agriculture. This committee, both a fact finding body and an organizing unit, was headed by John Hale of Yuba City. It sought particularly both a curtailment and a general organization plan that would satisfy growers and canners alike and that would fortify the industry against the many unfavorable conditions that now confront it, particularly overproduction.

It was determined by the pre-organization survey of the state-wide committee that it may not be possible to market more than half the crop this year. The curtailment plan provides alternative measures for both removing the excess trees and thinning the crop, the cost of the same to be met from a fund set up from returns obtained from the marketable fruit. The basis set for such curtailment was $4 per ton, based on the 1930-31 crop figures.

The corporate set-up of the California Federated Peach Growers includes all interested independent growers, provided such growers either join an existing cooperative or form cooperatives of their own. Sacramento was named as the headquarters of the corporation.

"With the industry's machinery assembled and actually under way no time will be lost in mobilizing the industry to meet the unfavorable conditions that confront it," Director Moulton said. "It has been our desire to see that even the humblest grower shall not be threatened with ruin because of the present combination of overproduction and unfavorable markets. The assiduous and untiring work of the state-wide committee has evolved an orderly and energetic program of reconstruction for both the industry and its markets, and the needs of the smallest grower have ever been kept in mind. Through this organization the cling peach industry has made a splendid, courageous answer to the present conditions."

The immediate work of the corporation will be to complete crop processing arrangements and prices with both commercial and cooperative canners, to organize the independent growers and to immediately launch the curtailment plan.

Early this morning A. J. Jones, proprietor of a rooming house on railroad avenue, across from the S. P. depot, fell from a second story window of his establishment. George Marston, who was transacting business at the depot, witnessed the accident, and rushed to the unfortunate man's assistance. He summoned Dr. F. R. Anderson, who treated Mr. Jones for a fractured nose and lacerations of the face.

LOCAL HI SCHOOL GIRL WINS PRIZE FOR BEST ESSAY

Miss Dorothea Willis of the Campbell high school was awarded the first prize of a $30 scholarship in an essay contest sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, and the San Jose News.

A program was held at the Campbell school Thursday afternoon when the presentation of prizes were made. George Fugii of Santa Clara was awarded the second prize of a $20 scholarship, and Miss Wylda Anderson of Campbell was awarded the third prize of alternate use of either scholarship.

The subject upon which the entrants from the senior classes of the Campbell, Los Gatos, Fremont and Santa Clara high schools wrote was "George Washington — His Services to the United States." Judge Percy O'Connor gave an appropriate address at the program, and Mrs. Warren Smith, representing the sponsors, spoke briefly to the students.

Mrs. Lillian Shaw spent a few days last week visiting at Carmel.

SYNOPSIS OF LOCAL OPERETTA IS GOOD SAMPLE OF SHOW

Everything is in readiness for the presentation of the high school operetta, "The Magic Maker," Friday evening, April 15, at the grammar school auditorium.

The prologue takes place high up on a barren messa where the Aztec Indians are praying for rain, in order that the tribe will not perish. That fate is certain unless Wahtonah's son, Fleet Foot, is sacrificed to the gods. The Navajos attack, and everyone goes to battle but Toyolanne, the medicine man, and Fleet Foot. The medicine man mixes a magic potion which enfolds Fleet Foot and himself in sleep for a thousand years.

The action takes place on the Bar Q ranch a thousand years later. Dick Silvers, his daughter Bonnie, her Indian girl companion Naiya, Jack, the foreman of the ranch and Bonnie's fiancee; Lee Sing, the cook; Tillie, the housemaid, and a house guest, Lord James Hasbrook, live in the ranch house. Jack finds the two Indians who prove to be Fleet Foot and Toyolanne awakened from their sleep. Walker and Parks, two oil men, attempt to take Naiya's deed to valuable property given her father by the government.

Act 2 opens with a ball. Comedy is provided by the proposal of Lord James to Bonnie. Whiffle, a broken down Shakesperian actor and his valet, Erastus, provide humorous situations.

Dick announces the betrothal of Jack and Bonnie, also of Naiya and Fleet Foot. A messenger delivers a telegram reporting that oil has been discovered on Naiya's property. Toyolanne is proclaimed a Magic Maker, the West an Enchanted Land, and the Ranch Bar Q a place for rest and recreation.

DR. J. ED FANNING WINS TROPHY AT RECENT MATCH

Monday Dr. Fanning participated in the organization's annual golf tournament which was held at the Orinda Country club. Playing against a field of 200 entrants, Dr. Fanning carried off the silver trophy for low net score. The match consisted of 18 holes of medal play in which the Campbell man made the exceptionally fine score of 64.

BIG CROWD VIEWS NEW FORD HERE LAST THURSDAY

At a showing of the new Ford V-8 held here Thursday considerable favorable comment was heard on the appearance of the new car.

Held at the showroom of Dunlap & Smily, local Ford dealers, the showing was attended by several hundred persons. The car viewed here was the de luxe roadster model, whose graceful lines and sturdy construction brought many back for a second look at the new car.

Mr. Dunlap stated that he had never before seen so much interest manifested in a new model Ford car.

BIGGEST STATE FAIR AIM OF GOV. JAS. ROLPR, JR.

Sacramento, April 12—Governor James Rolph, Jr., today launched a five-month's campaign to make the California State fair next September a record-breaker in attendance and number of exhibits.

His opening gun was in the form of a proclamation in which he urged that "all Californians lend their support to this great educational enterprise, a worthy monument to the future progress of our Western Empire."

Although the 1931 state fair broke all attendance records for an eight-day exposition with 331,000 people passing through the turnstiles, Governor Rolph is aiming at an attendance mark of half-million for the 78th annual fair which opens in Sacramento Sept. 3 and continues for eight days.

"The increase in attendance during the past five years has been highly gratifying," the Governor pointed out, "but there are many thousands of Californians who have not seen their state's marvelous exposition —one that stands without parallel among the exhibits of the nation. In other states the California fair is referred to as 'the world's greatest horticultural show,' and each year it attracts visitors from all parts of the United States as well as from many foreign countries. The livestock exhibits, too, are unsurpassed, as shown by the fact that California State fair winners are also the winners at the nation's leading livestock exposition.

"During the next five months I shall endeavor, with the aid of my fellow Californians, to spread information throughout the state in the interest of our state fair, and through this cooperative effort we can make this coming fair greater in every respect than any of the 77 expositions which have preceded it."

NATIVE SONS TAKE CAMPBELL BALL 9 FOR A RIDE SUND'Y

Musladin fanned eight and allowed 24 hits. Padilla and LeRoy led the home team with two hits each, while Maloney and Boland of the Lodgemen got four hits each. Fragosa hit two homers and Alves one for the Natives.

Campbell opens the Valley league season with a game here Sunday.

President and Congress in Jam Over Reduction in Expenditures—House Passes Bill for Philippines' Independence—Senate Faces Revenue Fight.

THE battle for reorganization of government bureaus and agencies and for a general reduction in expenditures developed into a partisan struggle in congress with President Hoover's proposals under attack. The President led off with a special message to congress in which he said that while a further reduction of $200,000,000 in expenditures, in addition to the billion dollars of new taxes, would be required to balance the budget, an even greater saving could be accomplished by consolidation of bureaus and boards, by reform of administrative methods, by abolition of "less necessary functions," and by temporary suspension of other activities.

President Hoover

Inasmuch as so far reaching an economy program would require the repeal and amendment of a multitude of existing laws, he proposed that the preparation of a comprehensive plan be assigned to a commission composed of senators, congressmen and representatives of the Executive.

The President's proposals met with immediate opposition on the part of Democrats in both houses, and a demand that the Executive submit specific recommendations for the reduction of expenditures. Speaker Garner declared that it was too late to create new commissions and assured the President that any specific recommendations he has to cut expenses will get quick action in the house.

In reply to the opposition voiced against his message, the President in a later statement said:

"What I asked for in my message was organized, nonpartisan co-operation by all forces to reduce government expenses in the national emergency which insistently demands relief for the taxpayer."

"What I have asked for is not a commission, but that the senate and house delegate representatives to sit down with representatives from the administration and endeavor to draft a national economy bill."

Continuing, he said that without such action he saw no way by which there can be a maximum reduction in expenditures.

The comeback to this was that if the President failed to present definite proposals for a reduction in expenses the Democratic leaders would present a plan of their own.

Senator Jones, Washington, Republican, acting on the President's proposal, introduced a joint resolution in the senate to create a commission of three senators, three representatives and three officials of the administration to draft an economy program and report within thirty days. It would not only suggest where appropriations should be slashed, but also recommend consolidation and elimination of government bureaus and agencies. The resolution met instant opposition in the senate.

The major senate contest over the billion dollar tax bill, now the subject of hearing before the senate finance committee, will probably develop with the move already started by independent members of both parties to boost the surtax rates on the higher incomes to a figure above the 40 per cent maximum cited by the house. That a determined effort will be made to restore the manufacturers' sales tax to the revenue bill is a certainty. That it will be accomplished is a foregone conclusion.

The importance of government salary cuts in the economy scheme has been emphasized in support given the idea by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, and Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi. The latter forecast with regret, that a general slash was likely to materialize.

The house special economy committee has approved bills to dispense with the army and navy transport service, with an assorted annual reduction in expenditures; to postpone indefinitely part of the government's big construction program in the Capital at a saving of $750,000, and to establish the international water commission. This is all the consolidating and dispensing yet recommended by the committee.

Both the house and senate appropriation committees continue to trim each bill down to the bone.

INDEPENDENCE of the Philippines, an agitated issue for three decades, is made possible by a bill which passed the house by a vote of 306 to 47, giving freedom to the islands. Not a Democratic vote was cast against the bill, and only two Democrats were paired in the negative. And on the Republican side the 47 who voted "no" were more than doubly matched by 119 who voted "yes." The Democratic total for the bill was 188 and the single Farmer-Labor vote was in the affirmative.

The bill agreed to provide for complete freedom for the Philippines after the islands have adopted a suitable constitution and undergone a probationary and semi-autonomous period of eight years, during which tariff exports to the United States shall be limited to present levels and immigration restricted to 50 persons annually.

On the Fourth of July following the conclusion of the eight-year period, American sovereignty is to be withdrawn without any native plebiscite as provided in other measures. The United States will reserve only the right to retain certain naval and military bases.

THE senate finance committee presided over by Chairman Smoot, has opened its hearings on the billion-dollar revenue bill passed by the house. A veritable avalanche of applications for hearings have been received by the committee.

Reed Smoot

Secretary of the Treasury Mills was the first witness at the hearing. He offered suggestions to eliminate defects and discriminations in the house measure.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, Republican member of the committee, began a drive to line up support for a general manufacturers' sales tax in the new revenue bill.

After informal discussions with Republicans and Democrats, Reed announced prospects for inserting a sales levy, similar to that rejected by the house, were by no means as unfavorable as forecast.

He will offer the sales tax amendment to the finance committee, of which he is a member, if he finds the proposal has a chance to pass. Excise taxes substituted by the house for the sales levy were described as "cock-eyed sales taxes." The sales tax, he held, is equitable and fair.

NEW YORK STATE'S primary was a walkaway for the Roosevelt and the Hoover tickets in the lone Democratic and the Republican contests.

In the Democratic contest, in the Forty-first congressional district in Buffalo, supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt swamped a ticket favorable to former Gov. Alfred E. Smith by better than 2 to 1.

The Republican contests were in New York city and in Brooklyn. Delegates favorable to the renomination of President Hoover won by approximately 18 to 1 in one and by about 4 to 1 in the other district over supporters of Joseph I. France of Maryland.

There was no opposition to the regular tickets anywhere else in the state. The Republican delegates to the national convention will support the President. Most of the upstate Democratic delegates are Roosevelt supporters, but the powerful Tammany bloc has not announced its stand.

SENATOR ALBEN W. BARKLEY of Kentucky will deliver the keynote address for the Democratic party when the national convention meets in Chicago on June 27. His selection was made by a subcommittee of 23 national committeemen in an all-day session in Chicago. Jouett Shouse of Kansas City, who was Senator Barkley's chief rival for the honor, is to be recommended for permanent chairman of the convention. Mr. Shouse, who is executive chairman of the national committee, issued the following statement at the close of the meeting:

A. W. Barkley

"By unanimous action of the committee it was decided to recommend to the national committee, to be in turn recommended to the convention, the selection of Senator Barkley for temporary chairman and the selection of Mr. Shouse as permanent chairman of the convention.

INFURIATED by months of distress from unemployment and dissatisfaction with the government policy, a mob of 10,000 stormed the house of assembly at St. John's, Newfoundland, and forced the resignation of the government. Windows were smashed and public documents strewn in the streets.

Police were powerless in the demonstration. World war veterans then took charge of the situation and succeeded in partially restoring order. Citizens obeyed only the World war officers and the veterans under them on the streets of the capital, while most of the police were bottled up in the assembly building by the irate mob which milled outside.

THERE will be no "discussion or negotiation" on the question of European debts by Secretary of State Stimson during his visit to Geneva, was the emphatic declaration of President Hoover.

Secretary Stimson

Stimson's visit is solely in the interest of securing concrete and definite results from the general disarmament conference, even though these results may not be revolutionary in character, the President said.

"The world needs, both economically and spiritually, the relief that can come from some degree of successful issue by the disarmament conference," the President said.

"Some two months ago I presented ideas which I believe would contribute to a solution of some of the problems, and which were incorporated in the general program.

CLEAR signals were visible during March that important results were following from the co-ordinated plans of public agencies and private finance to bring about basic improvement in the condition of business, the American Bankers' Association Journal says in its monthly review.

It notes that, although immediate stimulations in current commercial and industrial activity were lacking and favorable trends in standard trade indexes were not apparent, growth in financial confidence and decrease in public fear were "too definite to be based on anything but solid facts and carried greater weight than formal statistics."

Concrete expression of a return of financial confidence was given for a period during March in the bond market, which evidenced a relaxation in the pressure of financial distress and fear, and a turn in the direction of safety and confidence, the Journal says. "The most important aspect of business betterment has been the widespread return of the banks to more normal conditions," it says, attributing this to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other co-operative arrangements for assisting both closed and operating banks that are "clearly having the desired effects."

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENeral Seth Richardson, in a report to the senate, described police administration in Honolulu as "impotent, undisciplined, neglectful and unintelligent."

The report was in answer to a senate resolution calling for information on law enforcement in Hawaii. It followed the wave of criticism in navy and congressional circles over the reign of terror in the islands, and paticularly in Honolulu, brought to light by the attack and assault by five natives upon Mrs. Tralia Massie.

Mr. Richardson recommended the appointment by the President of a territorial police head for the entire territory, with full power of control and organization and similar appointment of an attorney general to be the public prosecutor.

THE pinch of national economy prompted Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, to issue a declaration against full payment of the veterans' bonus certificates. Citing the $2,000,000,000 deficit in prospect for the government this year and the pending bill to raise new taxes, the senator in a letter to veterans of his state said:

"I regret that existing conditions impel me, in the interest of the county, to oppose the legislation at this time."

The stand taken by Senator Harrison, coupled with the known view of other senate leaders, is believed to doom any prospect of enactment into law of the bonus payment measure.

In his statement the Democratic financial leader of the senate pointed out that $1,000,000,000 of the $4,000,000,000 government budget now goes to the relief of war veterans.

A DECISION which brought to a stop the congressional career of Peter C. Granata of Chicago gave the Democrats of the house a full ten-vote lead over their Republican opponents.

Granata was voted out and Stanley H. Kunz was voted in by the house members. It was a decision on an election contest brought by the latter, the Democratic congressional candidate in the Eighth Illinois district, against the Republican who had been seated at the outset of the session on the strength of his certificate of election.

The standing of the parties in the house now is: Democrats, 221; Republicans, 211; farmer-labor, 1; vacancies, 2.

CURRENT COMMENT

Alva E. Belmont, chairman of the National Women's party, to Senator Johnson of California, denouncing the League for attempting to secure ratification of the Hague nationality convention which is said to discriminate against women. In her message Mrs. Belmont, who is in Paris, said:

"It is supremely important to American women not to lose their hard-won gains for equality by our country entering into any international agreement recognizing a system of law founded upon inequality between men and women.

"I wish to express to you the grateful appreciation by the National Women's party of your leadership in this fight to keep American women from losing through international action any of the equality which has now been established in our country."

It is not believed that European statesmen will relish this attempt of American women to place the League and its court in a position where there will be no sex discrimination, and so another vexing problem has come up to vex the League adherents in the United States. One can almost sense the joy which the efficient and chivalrous Senator J. H. Lewis must feel in thus sponsoring the cause of the American women, especially when his efforts are designed to do the cause of internationalism no particular good in the United States.

THE FARMERS CORNER

By Ralph H. Taylor

Are farmers in general, and California farmers in particular, bad moral and financial risks?

Are they mentally lazy, self-made victims of a "don't know and don't care to learn" frame of mind?

Are they poor producers, poor business men and, in short, "poor relations"—sort of would-be wards of the government?

You may not think so, but Peter B. Kyne, novelist, essayist and more recently farm philosopher and economist, says so!

Kyne, in fact, says a great deal more. In a recently syndicated article, ironically titled "The Poor Farmer," the California novelist declares that "there is entirely too much sympathy wasted on farmers." He thereupon hands down an impromptu diagnosis of the farmer's shortcomings, his verdict being that:

1. There should be a return to the simple virtues of the oldtime farmer . . . "He should do for himself what our forefathers did for themselves . . . have a few hogs fattening in a pen, have his own cow or two and thus have his milk, butter and cream, produce his own vegetables, most of his own fruit, his own eggs, berries," etc.

2. He should have better stock, better fertilizers, more ambition and some of the city business man's efficiency.

Because Author Kyne's diagnosis is typical of the ease with which urbanites often dispose of rural problems, it might be well at the outset to point out that there would be no market for Kyne novels if Kyne farm methods were adopted.

"Oldtime farmers," who raised a little bit of everything and farmed for a living rather than for profit, paid practically no taxes, gave practically nothing for their land and read practically nothing, other than the family Bible. They certainly had no funds for best sellers.

Nor could there be any San Francisco, any Los Angeles, or any Chicago or New York if the Kyne system of farm economics obtained. Such cities would quickly starve, for in "the good old days," which Mr. Kyne would recall, it took 90 per cent of the population to feed and clothe the nation. Today it requires but 30 per cent!

But to return to Author Kyne's half serious, half humorous references to the farmer as a bad financial risk, it is a fact, easily established, that there is more store credit granted to farmers in California, with less loss, than to city people.

The farmer, too, is a better "moral risk" than his urban brother, if divorce records may be taken as a criterion. Less than one per cent of the divorces in the United States are "farm divorces!" Yet more than 30 per cent of the nation's population is composed of farmers.

Looking at the lighter side of farming seriously, as Mr. Kyne did, it may be true that the farmer occasionally borders on becoming a ward of the government. But no one, certainly, has a better right or a greater opportunity. With the government taking 85 per cent of his net income in taxes (the record in California), the farmer might be pardoned for thinking of it as "his government." It almost is!

Author Kyne, incidentally, confesses in the course of his outburst that he is "both farmer and agriculturist," which seems to explain everything.

Dr. J. P. De Voss of the San Jose State Colloge will be the speaker of the evening. He has announced as his subject "Choosing a Vocation."

All parents and friends are urged to attend, as the organization will be forced to disband unless there is a greater attendance. The good work done by the P. T. A. during the past year is one reason why leaders of the movement desire to carry on, but failure is indicated unless every member attends.

The organization has collected $200 to help students through school. Over $100 has been used for other valuable work. Clothes have been mended and shoes repaired for needy students, and in several cases meals have been furnished. It is patent that the organization is of prime importance to those less fortunate youngsters who really want to get through school, and the relationship created between parents and teachers through this organization must not be overlooked. You are therefore urged to lend a hand and a shoulder to the wheel.

KIWANIS NOTES By Heck

With D. H. Cramer handling the birch and Prof. Thielke directing a group of students, the program at Kiwanis luncheon today was scholastic and entertaining.

A paper on world peace was read by Virgil Bondon.

A quartet, Lois Bachman, Muriel Wilson, Dick Pyle and Hugh Cramer sang a number from the operetta to be staged by high school students Friday evening.

"Depressions, Past and present, a class composition, was read by its composer, Phil Farley, and Dick Pyle sang an operetta solo which was followed by one of the contest-winning papers on "Washington and His Services" by Wylda Anderson. Lois Bachman and Hugh Cramer sang another operetta number, and the first-prize paper on Washington was read by the winner, Dorothea Willis.

The last and one of the best features of the program was the experiment removing some of the hot air from a small section of the room by means of an air pump operated by Frank Murch and Julius Costello. Would that such an apparatus of larger capacity might be installed permanently for Tuesdays!

ANNUAL MEETING OF LIBRARY ASSN. HELD LAST TUES.

Members of the Campbell Library association held their annual meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. E. R. Smith, last Tuesday evening, April 5. Officers were elected for the year as follows: president, Mrs. Smith; vice president, C. H. Whitman; secretary, Mrs. Lillian F. Shaw; treasurer, Guy Farley. Elected to the board of directors were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. E. I. Price, Guy Farley, J. C. Ainsley and H. C. Smith.

The Campbell Library association was organized in 1894 and their first meeting was April 16 of the same year. The organization was made up of a few residents of Campbell who were mutually interested in a library for Campbell. This association now makes the claim for funds from the community chest to defray part of the expenses of the institution.

When the Country Woman's club was incorporated in 1905 one of its stated objects was embodied in the words, "To aid the growth of the Campbell Free Library." Previous to this time there had been various unsuccessful attempts made to arouse interest enough in the community to find a suitable home for the books, at this time housed in the Congregational church parlors, and accessible one afternoon and one evening each week.

At the meeting of March 27, 1905, the newly organized Woman's club offered their services to the Library association, and since that time this club has always been recognized by the association as an efficient auxiliary.

In 1906 the books were moved into a room leased by the club, and were later moved into a small biulding built by the club in 1907. They borrowed the money to put up this redwood building. The library was housed her until 1923, when it was moved into the present building.

LOCAL TENNIS TEAM DEFEATS FREMONT HIGH

The tennis team of Campbell high school Thursday afternoon added Fremont's scalp to their already full collection of tennis trophies. The local boys emerged victorious in all matches, which are as follows:

Barnes, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1; DeSelle, 6-1, 6-4; Cramer, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4; Hocking and Person, 6-2, 6-1; Farley and Sanfillippi, 6-4, 6-4.

L. GRIFFIN HOME SAVED BY EFFORT OF BUCKET LINE

The George L. Griffin residence on Los Gatos road was saved from greater damage Sunday when neighbors formed a bucket brigade and put out a fire which had gained considerable headway on the roof. The prompt action of Gilbert Holladay who first saw the fire and gave the warning and who later served in the bucket brigade, is to be commended for his work. He is a Boy Scout under Rev. J. H. Bennett.

The local fire department was there in proper order, but there was little work for them to do. Officer Frank Coupland investigated.

Grange To Observe Past Masters Night This Evening

The past masters of the Orchard City Grange will be honored tonight at the regular meeting of that organization, where they, together with charter members, will be honored guests at the annual "past masters' night."

On the program will be a number of selections by the Keesling family orchestra. Mr. Gordon, San Jose photographer, will exhit some new pictures, and the past masters themselves will present a burlesque entitled "The Beauty Parlor."

An enjoyable evening is assured, and all members are urged to attend.

I. O. O. F. Will Receive Traveling Gavel Soon

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at Clark's Drug Store or any drugstore—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with the results—money back.
